Aliaksiej Lastoŭski. Russo-Centrism as an Ideological Project of Belarusian Identity

The article analyses the main features and ideas of russo-centrism as an intellectual project of Belarusian identity since establishing an independent state. It deals with genesis, intellectual and political sources, evolution and main proponents, relations with other projects, representations of the past, present and future of the Belarusian nation which are offered by this project.

Keywords: Russo-Centrism, West-Rusism, Nationalism, Belarusian Identity, Intellectual History.

The article investigates the main concepts of the Belarusian nation that have been shaped and articulated in Belarusian intellectual and political domains in 1990–2009 in the context of history of political ideas. The publication resulted from the study of several hundred books, articles and political documents. The differences and main trends in understanding of the Belarusian nation and public institutions that should shape it are demonstrated. Brief history, intellectual background and general characteristics of each trend are described.

Keywords: History of Ideas, Belarusian Nation, Nation-Building, Intellectual History, Identity.

The article draws attention to the fact that it is impossible to understand the evolution of the Belarusian society during the second half of the 20th century merely from the standpoint of political history. As it turns out, in the stability times of the Soviet regime, in the 1960s – 1970s, a vibrant public discourse existed in Belarus. In the mid-1960s, there was a previously (and later) unprecedented public historiographical debate on history of culture and on genesis of Belarusian culture in late medieval and early modern times. In the 1970s, these discussions will no longer be possible. Therefore, the polemical public opinion has to flee to the “samizdat”. In 1975-1976, in samizdat publication “Hutarki” (“Conversations”), Mikola Jermalovič formulated the concept of independence of Belarus.

Keywords: Social Thought, Political Ideas, “Samizdat”, Independence Concept.

The article investigates internal politics issues in the National Democratic project through the ideas of the most prominent representative from this faction of Belarusian politics – Belarusian People’s Front’s leader Zianon Paźniak – in the late 1980s and early 1990s, i. e. in the time of his most intensive political activities in the country. It attempts to outline the structure of this part of the project, as well as identifies main contents and priorities of the project. The special focus is made on the key concept of “National Revival” and its content ambiguity.

Keywords: Belarusian Politics, Zianon Paźniak, Belarusian People’s Front, National Democratic Movement, Nationalism.

Iryna Michiejeva. “Kryvija” and “Zadruga” as Cultural and Political Horizons of National Rebirth Projects of Belarus and Poland: Experience of Comparative Analysis

The article deals with a comparative analysis of philosophical and political projects of Belarusian (Vaclaŭ Lastoŭski) and Polish (Jan Stachniuk) national renascence. Based on theoretical reconstruction of problem and content fields of both concepts – “Kryvič Renascence” and “Slavic Pan-Humanism” – the article reveals similarities and differences in the authors’ interpretations of the essence of national culture, specifics of its development stages, and prospects for realization of historic mission of the Belarusian and Polish peoples.

Keywords: National and Cultural Renascence, Ethnonational Identity, Belarusian Nationalism, Panslavism, Neopaganism.

Institutions and Communities

Natallia Vasilievič. Study of Belarusian Elites: between Algebra and Geography

Foreign Policy and Security Studies

Dzianis Mieljancoŭ. Defence Systems in Lithuania and Belarus: Comparative Perspective

The article compares the evolutions of the defence systems of Lithuania and Belarus after both countries became independent. While Lithuania switched to the concept of expeditionary forces, the Belarusian authorities still resort to the old concept of deterrence and complete territorial defence. Despite the Military Forces’ modernization, in the near future Belarus will inevitably face the need in changing its attitude towards security and Military Forces’ structure. Here, Lithuania’s experience will be quite helpful.

Keywords: Security, Military Forces, Military Reform, Defence Concept, Lithuania, Belarus.
Andrej Jahoraŭ. Who Has Benefited from the Implementation of the Neighbourhood Policy in Belarus?

The article represents the analysis of European Union foreign policy in relation to Belarus from the time it gained independence. The author considers the formal frameworks and genetic changes of EU policy, its main challenges and contradictions, as well as the effects and the results of such foreign policy approaches. The Belarusian issue in EU Eastern policy is formulated as a contradiction between the aims to achieve stability and prosperity of the neighbouring countries and the issues of their democratization. Ineffectiveness of the democratization policy is also explained by the absence of corresponding, matching the situation strategies of EU towards Belarus. A paradoxical conclusion of such situation is that the main beneficiary of the European assistance is the Belarusian authorities rather than the democratic community.

Keywords: European Union, EU Eastern Policy, Eastern Partnership, Democratization, Belarus.

Uladzislaŭ Ivanoŭ. Belarus, Mechanics of a Dictatorship.

In the book by J.-C. Lallemand and V. Symaniec, Belarus is described as a classical dictatorship which allegedly preserves the socialist and Soviet order, loyalty to the Soviet idea of building an egalitarian society, but which has long ago been penetrated by tough mechanisms of capitalism. These mechanisms are destroying not only the economy but also national and linguistic specificity of Belarus. The authors describe the foundations of modern dictatorship within Belarus, consistently giving an important role to geopolitical component and domestic processes caused by the absence of civil society. The book combines both analytical and publicist texts, which makes it accessible to all readers.
